

=====
Episode 4: Acts of Social In-justice
=====

The next day before 10:30 AM, Christopher heads to work.

Christopher: OK, Lisa. I'm off to work; safeguard the house for me.

Lisa: I'll do that. Be careful out there, Christopher.

Christopher: I will. I'll see you at 7 PM. (leaves.)

Christopher drove off to the restaurant. But before he could enter, some members of the Social Justice Warriors appear at the entrance.

Christopher: What the hell is this? Hey, what are you guys doing here?

SJW Member #1: Fuck off.

The SJW member tried to attack him, but he was able to catch her hand.

Christopher: Leave this place, immediately!

Then some more SJW members surround him.

Cedric: Ok, Christopher. That's enough.

SJW Member #1: (Christopher lets go of the woman's hand.) You should feel lucky today, you bastard.

Christopher: Do you mind telling me why the hell are you guys here? He's only having these stupid events on Fridays and Saturdays.

SJW Member #1: Your boss is a very, ill-hearted individual; he needs to be put out of his misery.

Christopher: Hey, I thought you guys were fighting for social justice not killers of democracy.

SJW Member #2: Step aside. Now!

Christopher heads to the restaurant to see what Eugene was doing in his office. He sees him with two other women. They were given some stripper clothes.

Christopher: Eugene. Do you mind telling me what's going on? Why are these fucking Feminazis doing around your restaurant?

Eugene: They're just minding their own business; maybe you should do the same.

Christopher: They're threatening to shut us down and we're going to be without jobs.

Eugene: And that's supposed to phase me? Come on, Christopher; just chill out and act like an employee for once, not like a totalitarian.

Christopher: (feeling upset.) Ok, just remember - it's your funeral if they shut us down. (leaves.)

Eugene double-flipped Christopher off when he left his office. As you can see, Christopher was really upset with Eugene's attitude towards the Social Justice Warriors. He knew he had to take action against them, if Eugene wants to keep his life's work alive. At 7 PM, Christopher returns home.

Lisa: How was your day at work?

Christopher: Ridiculous and super salty; that's how it was. I had to deal with some unruly SJWs at Eugene's restaurant.

Lisa: SJWs? What's that?

Christopher: It's short for Social Justice Warriors. They have the most vile, ruthless, arrogant and ignorant bunch of females I have ever encountered in my life.

Lisa: Ignorant? I think you're labeling them pretty harsh.

Christopher: No. I wanted to get Dead or Alive Extreme 3; but guess who decided to blockade that game from entering the United States and the western countries.

Lisa: It was them?

Christopher: Yes, you're correct.

Lisa: That's why you hold a grudge over them, all because of a game?

Christopher: It's not just that. They're using that platform to degrade a male-dominated society and all other women that support them.

Lisa: I wouldn't underestimate them, if I were you.

Christopher: Why should I? I cringe every time I see them; Maxelle and Iris taught me how to fear women, but I'm not underestimating them. They have the potential to be just as equal to a man.

Then, a doorbell rings.

Christopher: I'll go get it.

He opens the door and sees that it was Rachael Loews. She is Joseph Loews's sister.

Rachael: Hi, Christopher.

Christopher: Hi, Rachael. Do you want to come in?

Rachael: Yes. (sees Lisa.) Who's she?

Christopher: She's Lisa Mason.

Rachael: Is she related to you?

Christopher: She is. Why are you here?

Rachael: I heard what you did to some of our members.

Christopher: It was only in self-defense. I'm sorry for what happened to them.

Rachael:

Christopher: Look, if you want to get mad at me for that, I'm going to have to ask you to leave.

Rachael: I'm not mad at you. It seems like you're having a beef between the owner of your restaurant.

Christopher: Eugene? Beef? Me? Where did you hear that?

Rachael: It doesn't matter. Anyway, I would like you to join our group to bring down Eugene.

Christopher: I'm sorry; I don't support women who operate above the law. If it's about your brother, Joseph, I can't do it even if it was for his sister's sake.

Rachael: You have been warned, Christopher. If you don't join us, we will take action.

Christopher: I made my decision; get out of here before I call the cops on you.

Rachael leaves.

Lisa: Wow, Christopher; that was harsh.

Christopher: Lisa, I apologize for my actions.

Rachael goes into a big black limo. In there was Maureen Sanders, the head honcho of the Social Justice Warriors of Providence. She had long maroon hair and was in her business attire.

Maureen: So, how did it go?

Rachael: He didn't accept my offer.

Maureen: Well, I guess we're going to have to attack Eugene's high valued workers directly.

Rachael: With what? I think you're going overboard with this.

Maureen: Oh, I bet you would say the same thing about what happened to Mary and Bella. Mary told us that she was mistreated at that restaurant and we're supposed to stand there and accept that? It's about time Eugene and Christopher realize their place in this world.

Rachael: I'm sorry for questioning you.

Maureen: Good.

At 8:30 PM, Christopher and Lisa head to the Myles's household to see Catherine. He knocks the door.

Tyler: Mama, we have visitors.

Wendy: Huh, this late? (puts on her black long-sleeved coverup and opens the door.)
Christopher, what a surprise. What are you doing here?

Christopher: I wanted to speak to Catherine about the SJW's attacks on Eugene's restaurant; I guess she hasn't made it home, yet.

Wendy: Why do you want her?

Christopher: I'm afraid that they're going to far with this whole "battle of the sexes" route. I really don't want to deal with them or their nonsense.

Wendy: You don't have to deal with them.

Christopher: So what were you doing?

Wendy: I just got through taking a bath.

Then, the doorbell rings. It was Damien.

Damien: What a surprise. I wasn't expecting you here, Christopher.

Christopher: I was just seeing if Catherine made it home, that's all.

Damien: Oh sure. Wasn't it something you were interested in seeing?

Christopher: (visbly angered but maintains his composure.) I'm so over that right now; I really don't care what you think of me and my actions towards women.

Damien: Could have fooled me; anyway, I'll leave you be for this. You happen to like berating women and you're just too proud to admit it. (leaves.)

Christopher: Like I care, Damien. I'm so sorry about that, Wendy and Tyler. I'm quite positive those SJWs are going to attack us, if we're not careful.

Wendy:

Christopher: Well, what do you want me to do, Wendy? I can't use my Raiken powers against them.

Wendy: Just leave. I'll ask the leader of the Council on what we're going to do about this.

Christopher: Ok. I'll be in touch if you're able come up with something on those demons. Let's go, Lisa.

Christopher and Lisa return back home. The next night, Catherine and her crew got off work early at 6:30 PM. Due to the amount of customers that were showing up was low; about thirty people appeared in total to eat lunch. The average amount of customers at this restaurant was at least sixty a day - special thanks to the SJWs. They were driving off and intimidating customers and Eugene was doing nothing about it.

Catherine: I'm off, Christopher.

Christopher: Ok. Be careful returning home, Catherine.

Catherine: I will. Bye-Bye.

Then, Sophie appears.

Christopher: Sophie, what are you doing here?

Sophie: Just seeing what these In-justice Warriors are doing. I can't believe Eugene's doing nothing about these people. Somebody's going to get hurt.

Christopher: You mean someone's going to be hurt. I'm quite positive these pussies are going to get fucked hard, if these SJWs go too far.

Sophie: You seem confident. (senses two demonic energies in the back alley.)

Christopher: What is it? What's wrong?

Sophie: There's demons in the back alley.

Christopher: Shit. Catherine's in trouble. Come on; let's get them.

Christopher and Sophie head to the back alley to see two demons. It was Sage and Thyme.

Sage: It's that Raiken, Thyme.

Christopher: (sees Catherine was injured.) What did you do to her?

Thyme: That's none of your business. She was trespassing in our territory and we took action.

Christopher: Who are you two working for? Ogra?

Sage: Seem like this idiot knows about our lord. Anyway, get him.

Christopher fights against Thyme for two minutes. Christopher was able to overpower both Sage and Thyme with his Raiken powers and they fled. Sophie and Christopher checked to see if Catherine was alright - she passed out after seeing Christopher use his Raiken powers.

Sophie: We have to take her to the hospital, Christopher. I think her ankle is broken.

Christopher: I'm sorry for what happened to her; this is really going to upset Eugene.